

RTPI NORTH WEST UPDATE 2011 PROGRAMME

Considering health and equity in impact assessment

OR

Seeing the whole of the leopard not just the spots

Wednesday 9 November 2011
(12.00 – 4.30 pm including lunch)

Wigan Oak Hotel, Wigan

This is an interactive action oriented workshop. Divided into two sessions, it combines 'thinking' about health and equity in impact assessments with 'doing'. It does this through a combination of presentations and group work in which participants apply a health and equity lens to real case study scenarios. The facilitators will provide examples of good practice in considering health and equity in different forms of impact assessments. The final session gives participants an opportunity to apply learning to a policy, programme or project of their own so do please bring with you a short summary (no more than one page) of a policy, programme or project that you would like to apply a health equity lens.

Aims and objectives

- ❖ Provide an update on impact assessment in current policy and legislation
- ❖ Clarify what health and equity mean and why they matter
- ❖ Identify what difference a health and equity lens in impact assessment can make and highlight good practice
- ❖ Identify the opportunities and challenges to consideration of health and equity in impact assessment practice in times of austerity and uncertainty
- ❖ Provide an opportunity to 'have a go' applying a health and equity lens
- ❖ Provide an opportunity to consider learning in relation to own work
