SUSTAINABILITY - Identifying & Mitigating the Impact of New Development

A One-Day Conference being held on TUESDAY 15 DECEMBER 2009

in the CORPORATE SUITE, MICHAEL ASHCROFT BUILDING, ANGLIA RUSKIN UNIVERSITY, RIVERMEAD CAMPUS,
BISHOP HALL LANE, CHELMSFORD, CMI 1SQ

The issue of sustainability won't go away in any of our lifetimes. Ensuring that this message is heard, understood and put into practice will test the skills of all those involved in the planning profession, of developers and of advisers in the community who participate in the development process.

There are now many tools at our disposal to help us achieve this goal. In what will undoubtedly be a successful learning experience in the supportive setting of Anglia Ruskin University, this conference will provide another opportunity to bring together a range of experts in the field.

The topics to be covered include EIA and sustainability, economic regeneration set in the national and local policy context, planning for communities and the assessment of the potential impacts of development on the natural environment, as well as a demonstration by the University of sustainable skills training.

Speakers will focus on identifying and avoiding the potentially negative impacts of developments in relation to their area of work and use case studies from within the East of England or the UK.

There should be something to interest everyone!
