

Wednesday 29th November, 6:00pm

Colliers International, 50 George Street, London, W1U 7GA

We are pleased to announce London's official World Town Planning Day celebration for 2017. Coinciding with the launch of Sadiq Khan's draft London Plan, the theme for this year's event is that of the "House Me London" campaign. Launched in May, the "House Me London" campaign seeks to engage all Londoners in a far-reaching social-media discussion about the challenges of and solutions to London's housing crisis.

London's annual World Town Planning Day event has become a regular calendar highlight and this is no exception. The evening will feature an influential panel of speakers from within and beyond the built environment professions, who have each influenced debates in both the UK and globally.

Sharing their bold and imaginative views will be:

- Jonathan Manns (Colliers International),
- Patrik Schumacher (Zaha Hadid Architects),
- Jonn Elledge (New Statesman / CityMetric),
- Kevin Rhowbotham (Architect),
- John Myers (London YIMBY)
- Dickon Robinson (Building Futures).

The discussion will be chaired by Zoe Green (PwC).

Timings:

18:00 – Registration

18:00 – Panel Discussion
